Dual Certification

At this time, students interested in becoming certified to teach more than one secondary subject can should complete a double major (e.g., English Education and Spanish Education). Check the certification requirements in the state(s) in which you wish to become certified at <http://www.teachered.udel.edu/certification/>.

Study Abroad

Students can study abroad in any academic term (summer, fall, winter, or spring). Each study abroad program is sponsored by one or more departments (e.g., Foreign Languages, English, Sociology), and students can choose from a variety of programs in order to gain experience in a specific part of the world and/or to fulfill specific course requirements, such as minor requirements or a breadth requirement. <http://www1.udel.edu/global/studyabroad/>.

Undergraduate Research

At any phase of their undergraduate careers, students can get involved in conducting research alongside faculty mentors. Students can conduct research in independent studies and/or over the summer months. A listing of faculty research projects and undergraduate research procedures is online at <http://urp.udel.edu/>.

Writing Fellows

Advanced undergraduates are selected through a competitive process to assist faculty in writing-intensive courses. Sophomores and juniors take ENGL316, a three-credit training course offered in the spring. See <https://sites.udel.edu/honors/writing-fellows2/> for details.

Writing Center Peer Tutors

Advanced undergraduates are selected through a competitive process to tutor their peers in the University Writing Center. Selected students take ENGL392, a three-credit training course. See <https://www.writingcenter.udel.edu/for-undergraduate-students/working-in-the-writing-centers/peer-tutors> for details.

4+1 Programs

In 4+1 programs, students earn a bachelor's and master's degree in 5 years. Several programs are available in education fields; see <http://www.education.udel.edu/4-1/> for details.
